“ I heard about your passing via family. I was heart broken. We always had that connection of being the “oldest” in our families. I used to tease you about you turning a year older than me before I hit that age. We talked you and I. I believed in you, and all you could accomplish.

We grew up, lost contact, visited only a few times over these last years. Remember when I used to sneak into your workplace to pull you aside to chat? My good friend Bev who worked with you kept me apprised of how you were. Remember when I stole time at your lunch break to discuss your current interest? Remember when I pulled you aside from your work station to just talk about how you were? I so put you in jeopardy of losing your job – luckily Bonnie King liked me :-)

You had a disability, but you weren't disabled in my eyes. I do so hope you are traveling the universe experiencing the freedom you so deserve. I do hope that your journey provides you the opportunity to do all that you desired.

I love you cousin, and you will remain in my heart.
