“ Please forgive me if I am in the wrong place but please let me know if this is the right person. I’m hoping it’s the wrong person. I am looking for an online friend who disappeared from her online activities in late February. The Mary Kaye I am seeking was having eye problems in Feb and told other online friends that she was going to hospital. The person I am looking for had a beloved pet dog called Tuxie, whom she lost a number of years ago, I believe. I tried to email her personal email in March with no reply and again today, but got a “failure notice” reply, saying that her mailbox was “over quota,” which made me concerned. I would so appreciate having any information that I could pass along to her other friends – she was beloved and is missed by many. Thank you. I am willing to share my personal email if someone is willing to speak with me. Thank you!
