“ I only had the privilege to work with Spencer for 2 years but we worked side by side every day and he was a truly wonderful person. He was funny and witty. He always had a smart comeback for anything you tried to throw at him. He was one of the hardest workers I've ever seen and I'll still remember the few arguments with him trying to get him to take a rest when his blood sugar was low. He never wanted to stop. He would always come into work at FedEx after getting 2 hours of sleep after his other job and school. He was a good friend and I'll miss him a lot. I hope now he can finally rest and catch up on all that sleep he was missing out on.
